

Pains	Gains
Unprofitable investment in disease prevention.	"Reliable" agrochemical alternatives.
Non-lasting periods in the decrease of the infection.	Availability to test new products, as long as they are effective.
Harmful effects to human health and the ecosystem, such as the development of resistance to antibiotics
Inefficiency of current products
High investments required for the prevention and cure of the fire blight	